'He took with him a favorite pointer dog. The route taken was southward some fifty miles to Parsons, Kan., by railroad thence northeastward to Fort Scott and on into Missouri, nearly due east from the latter point. All went very well for a few days after he began unting, but by some means the dog days hunting it, and as it was no use to try to hant without the dog he went home and there found the dog all right. According to the report of his family the dog had reached there within two days from the time he had lost him. and as the distance was more than seventy-five miles it is quite certain that the dog took a near cut for home. Now, if this dog had no sense of direction what had he that led him to take what we may confidently believe to be the straight and true course for home when he had passed over the other two sides of the triangle by rail? Who does not know that a cat, or even a halfgrown kitten, taken a long way from some in a bag, nearly always finds its way back? When living in northern Michigan I had a cat we tired of. I took her in a boat directly across the lake, about two miles, and turned her loose. Although it was about six miles around the end of the lake, a circuitous course, and certainly one unknown to her by sight, the next morning she was back at the old place. Another case is related gas then called the doctor out of bed to me of a cat that was taken by rail fully twenty miles in southwest Missouri, and the next day he walked in all right at his former home."

SACRED FISH.

A Strange Superstition of the Moslems o

Tripoli. Near Tripoli the Moslems have crected a large, high building, with snowpassed into the liver and lung, and will white dome, near the pond and tree probably prove fatal. The boy is 18 known in occult literature as the "Pond and Tree of the Sacred Fish." The building itself has a title equally as high-sounding as the pond and the tree, being known throughout northern Africa as "The Palace of the Sacred Fish." The fish, which are kept in a clear pool in the rear of the building, much resemble common dace or chub animated souls of departed Moslems of high renown. One, a large black fish, the king of these piscatorial oddities, is said to seldom show himself, but the turning from a visit to the Ogdensburg school yesterday afternoon, Old Mission school children amused them selves by shooting off their revolvers. Willie Ayers, aged 16 years, was accidentally shot in the temple by George Sweene. He lived only a few hours. Will Aid the Project.

KISSING THE BOOK.

Jurymen and Witnesses Still Sworn in the Old Fashion in England.

Ignorance of the provisions of Mr. Bradlaugh's oaths act of 1888 is, I suppose, responsible for the fact that hitherto jurymen and witnesses have never, or hardly ever, exercised the power they possess of demanding to be sworn in the Scotch fashion, with right hand held aloft, instead of by "kissing the book," says London Truth. However, now that attention has been called to the matter in the press, the dirty and dangerous osculatory method of administering the oath appears likedeath as to whether he left a will. He ly to be superseded by the more seemly died intestate and his son, Paul Butler, and Scotch practice. A juryman was and son-m-law, Adelbert Ames, have sworn in the latter way at Liverpool applied for a letter of administration assizes recently, and at Fulton police upon the estate. All persons interested court a doctor objected, "on sanitary grounds," to kiss the Testament which was handed to him. If court officials were instructed to ask each witness or juryman in which way he would be sworn the nasty custom of "kassing the

Charles XII. of Sweden had a female grenadler in his army who possessed the beard as well as the courage of a man. Margaret, duchess of Austria and governess of the Netherlands, had a large, wiry, stiff beard, of which she was very proud. Of late years, Albert, duke of Bavaria, reports having bad a young lady governess in his household, who was the "proud possessor of a very large black beard."

"There are many trout fishermen in this country who would a little rather fish than eat, and who go to almost no end of trouble and expense to find good fishing. Why do they not go to New Zealand," asks the NewYork Sun. "On the east coast of the southern island there are giant trout. From either one of five snow-fed rivers one may take one hundred pounds with a fly. The trout average about four pounds in weight, but run as heavy as twenty-five pounds. An eight-pounder is about the heaviest fish one may expect to catch with a fly. These New Zealand trout were originally from English streams, and twenty-five years ago there were none there. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 21 .- A number of Lake Erie & Western strikers of Muncie, Ind., were before Judge Baker of the United States district ers stood trial and others have not yet been brought in. The court adjourned for a week, because Judge Baker's presence is required in Chicago, and in announcing this adjournment the court addressed the prisoners for their guidance in the meantime.

He said: "In this case the evidence shows that there are a number of men who belong to a secret labor organiza-tion whose ramifications reach not only over the entire extent of the It has kindred associations by other names in Europe. All these organizations have the same general sim, and that is by force, violence and terrorism to compel their employers to submit their business, their property, their means of livelihood to the arbitrary demands of these associations.
